Training Directory
2017

Welcome to the HRXchange Training Directory for 2017

HRXchange provides a varied calendar of events focusing on employment law and related issues.

It is aimed at HR professionals and others with a people management role in the workplace.

All of our events are delivered by specialist, employment lawyers with a wealth of experience.

Our expertise enables us to provide down-to-earth, practical training. We give advice and guidance on real business issues rather than pure legal theory.

Our courses are interactive and provide the perfect forum for delegates to discuss issues with the trainers and other delegates and to share experiences with their peers.

All of our courses attract CPD credits from the CIPD and Solicitors' Regulation Authority.

All of our training courses can also be run in-house, and be tailored as required in order to address any particular challenges faced by your organisation. Further details can be found on page 8.

Our sessions also provide an opportunity to engage with others in the HR sector and the Gateley Plc team. HR can be a lonely business; our forum is the perfect way to share ideas, challenges and solutions with peers.

This directory contains details of each of our core training courses for 2017, which will be run in the following locations:

- ◆ Birmingham
- ◆ Bristol
- ◆ Leeds
- ◆ Leicester
- ◆ London
- ◆ Manchester
- ◆ Nottingham
- ◆ Reading

We look forward to welcoming you on one of our courses in the near future.

"Extremely useful and enjoyable. Pitched at the right level too - no legal jargon. Great and very helpful presenters."

Spring 2017 Employment Law Update

What will we cover?

Given the current political landscape, significant change is likely to be afoot for HR professionals. 2017 is set to be an eventful year.

Our Spring 2017 employment law update will explore current government proposals in the employment field together with developments in employment case law and how they will impact on your organisation.

This will be a half day seminar; the first half of which will focus on recent, and proposed, legislative changes including;

- ◆ The introduction of gender pay gap reporting
- ◆ Brexit - where are we now?
- ◆ The likely introduction of 'grandparental leave'

In the second part of the seminar our case law roundup will review developments from the preceding six months including:

- ◆ Developments in how to calculate holiday pay (including Lock -v- British Gas concerning commission payments)
- ◆ Unfair dismissal
- ◆ Discrimination
- ◆ TUPE

Who should attend?

This session is aimed at all HR professionals, together with directors and managers who have a responsibility for personnel matters.

Timings

Registration will take place from 9.00am with the seminar commencing at 9.30am and finishing by 1.00pm when lunch will be served. There will be networking opportunities during registration, coffee breaks and over lunch.

Managing Absence Masterclass

What will we cover?

According to recent figures the average employee in the UK is absent from work for almost seven days a year due to sickness. The annual cost implication for UK employers has been placed as high as £29 billion.

Managing sickness absence has become a daily challenge for many UK businesses, particularly when dealing with absence of a long-term nature. Employers must tread a careful balance between managing employee welfare and risk, whilst continuously monitoring the operational and financial impact that absence, particularly long-term, can have upon the business.

Led by experienced employment lawyers, this session will provide attendees with the legal and practical knowledge to manage long-term absence in a proactive, fair and efficient manner. Worked examples will assist the discussion.

The session will consider:

- ◆ When is an employee deemed to be 'disabled'? What are the implications?
- ◆ What makes an adjustment 'reasonable'?
- ◆ How should a period of absence be managed; from the initial phone call through to potential dismissal
- ◆ How to address a pattern of short-term absence
- ◆ How to deal with an absent employee who refuses to communicate
- ◆ Holiday pay and long-term absence: what is the current position?
- ◆ Permanent health insurance: does this affect the ability to dismiss?
- ◆ Getting on the front foot: what can be done to deter employee absence?

Who should attend?

This course is aimed at anyone who may be involved in managing sickness absence issues on behalf of their organisation.

Timings

Registration will take place from 8.30am with the seminar commencing at 9.00am and finishing by 11.30am. There will be networking opportunities during registration and after the seminar.

Winter 2017 Change Management Masterclass

What will we cover?

Whether due to economic uncertainty, changes within the business or simply a need to improve efficiency, all businesses will at some point need to implement people-related change.

Led by experienced employment lawyers, the session will focus on two key areas of change management: redundancy and changes to terms and conditions.

The first half of the seminar will consider the redundancy process and provide practical advice to carry this out in the most fair and efficient way possible, minimising risk and damage to staff morale. Focus areas will include:

- ◆ 'Redundancy' - is this always easy to spot?
- ◆ The selection process: selection pools, 'bumping' and fair criteria

- ◆ The consultation process: What, when and how?
- ◆ Collective consultation: when is this triggered and what does the process involve?

During the second part of the session we will consider how to fairly implement changes to employee terms and conditions. This will include:

- ◆ When will a change to terms and conditions amount to a 'redundancy'?
- ◆ Could collective consultation obligations be triggered?
- ◆ Non-consenting employees: can the new terms and conditions be imposed anyway? What are the risks? When will a dismissal be fair because of 'some other substantial reason'?

Who should attend?

This course is aimed at anyone who may be involved in organising, communicating and/or implementing a business change on behalf of their organisation, in particular HR professionals together with managers who have responsibility for personnel matters.

Timings

Registration will take place from 8.30am with the seminar commencing at 9.00am and finishing by 11.30am. There will be networking opportunities during registration and after the seminar.
